An Evening Echo.

Nothing can be settled which is not right. Nothing can be settled which is against freedom. Nothing can be settled which is contrary to divine law. God, nature and all holy sentiments of the heart repudiate any such false, seeming settlement. Amidst the shifts and changes of party our duties remain, pointing the way to action. In the light of duties that we and peace for our country and ourselves. Nor can any settlement promise peace which is not in harmony with those everlasting principles from which our duties spring.—CHARLES SUMNER.

In the Maine controversy over the liquor question, Woodrow Wilson has declared himself for local option.

Bryan was enlisted a year or two ago in a crusade to make Nebraska dry. The two men seem to have different kinds of "progressiveness."

There is more sadness in the Democratic camp. The additional amount is caused by the announcement by Bull Moose leaders that that party will support the Republican ticket in West Virginia and not bring out a separate ticket. Thus, again, are the wishes of the Democratic machine fulfilled.

William R. Thompson, of Huntington, Democratic nominee for governor, has not declared himself so far as the telegram knows as to how much use he has for liquor, if any, but the Exponent seems bent on forcing him to do so by the attacks it is making on Dr. Hatfield. Come on, Mr. Thompson, let the public know where you are "at" on the question.

The Bosses Rule.
George J. Neal was not turned down by the Democratic state committee for its chairmanship on account of his unprogressive views and his fondness for Governor Harmon of Ohio and what the latter represents. It was done at the command of William E. Chilton, alleged United States senator from West Virginia.

William R. Thompson, Democratic nominee for governor, wanted Neal as chairman and picked him with the belief that the committee would ratify his selection. Chilton, however, has a long standing misunderstanding with Neal, as the latter never warmed up to the former to an extent gratifying to Chilton.

The situation was such that Senator Clarence W. Watson staid away from the meeting as it appears to have been agreed between Chilton and Watson that Chilton should dictate the selection of a chairman, and he did so dictate, when Neal went down and Stuart W. Walker got the place. It is strongly intimated that some old scores were paid when Chilton kept the chairmanship from Neal.

A feature of the scrap that will not give the rank and file of the Democratic party much encouragement was the disregard of the two state bosses had for the desire of the gubernatorial nominee, together with the fact that he and the committee had to bow down to the bosses and let the latter have their way.

The incident impresses the belief that should Thompson be elected governor he will be made the mere tool of the bosses, whether he desires to be. First blood was won by the bosses in the contest with the committee and the nominee and why does it not show that the bosses purpose to keep the committee and the nominee under their thumbs at all times?

Rat and Mouse Foes.
A series of experiments recently conducted by fire prevention experts has proved that rats and mice will not gnaw match tips, which dispels the generally accepted belief that many fires have their origin in this manner.

These experiments were scientifically conducted by technical experts who allowed hundreds of rats and mice to stare to death with matches as the only articles they could gnaw. In not a single case was a match lighted, nor was any evidence found that the teeth of the rodents had touched any of the matches. Although the odor, fumes and taste of modern match compositions were found to be not poisonous to rats or mice, the conclusion was inevitable as a result of the experiments that the compositions are strongly repugnant and obnoxious to the rodents. The only possible manner in which a rat or a mouse could start a fire with a match would be the unusual case wherein the animals should use matches in building their nests and push them in such a position as to cause accidental friction. The fire prevention experts, however, have found that only a very few authenticated cases are of this nature and that the probability of a fire from this source are quite remote.

Heretofore when all other probabilities have been discredited, the blame for the origin of a fire has usually been placed on rats or mice, but the experiments show that in the future this resort will not be accepted as tenable and that the investigation of causes must proceed deeper. The burden of ascertaining the actual cause of fires common to rats or mice is thus and unrestrained.

put upon their marshals and other investigators.

Free From Scandal.
Democratic politicians in their state platform adopted recently in convention at Huntington made a laborious effort to make the impression that the state government is unclean, high-handed and a matter of ring rule, prodigate in money expenditure and not such a government as should represent the people of West Virginia. There was a loud tone of denunciation.

Notwithstanding that expressed attitude, the Democratic press is not able to carry the expression forward, for the reason that in unguarded moments the high praise due the state administration comes out. A recent edition of the Clarksburg Exponent contained evidences of the high regard in which the state administration is actually held by it. Speaking of the selection of James S. Lakin as chairman of the Republican state committee, after calling attention to the fact that he is a state official, the Exponent admits that there has been no real scandal during the administration of Governor William E. Glasscock, and thus it refutes and repudiates the planks in the Democratic platform containing denunciations of the Glasscock administration. The Exponent says:

"The situation is sufficiently serious to justify the Democratic and independent press of the state in joining in an appeal to Governor Glasscock to take immediate action to prevent the closing months of his administration from being clouded with a real scandal."

The tenor of the quotation means to a real certainty that there has been no real scandal as yet in the Glasscock administration. There is no way to make it mean other than what it says, and the admission is certainly very significant in view of the denunciatory planks of the Democratic state platform.

Why They Favor Wilson.
Woodrow Wilson, it seems, is quite popular in England and Canada as a candidate for president of the United States. The Pittsburgh Gazette-Times says this is not because of his personality but rather on account of the Baltimore platform and the governor's declaration that the tariff should be revised downward at once. Says that newspaper:

British manufacturers, hard driven for opportunities to expand their exportations, calculate that, once the Democratic party secures control at Washington, the tariff for revenue only policy will be applied. This will enable them to lay down the products of their poorly-paid labor in the United States at prices that will defy American competition unless our own manufacturers make reductions. Hence England approves Wilson and wishes him well. If American industries are compelled to run short-handed, or to suspend operations, or to cut down wages, that, naturally, is none of England's affairs. Her manufacturers understand that if Democrats should succeed in the November election, and they were to be followed by the enactment of a tariff bill tending toward free trade, that act would remain on the books at least for several years, just as the Wilson bill of evil memory did.

Canada hopes for Wilson's election for precisely the same reason. It will then drive all the benefits accruing from the lower duties at American custom houses without extending any compensating advantages to American exporters, and will have obtained the longed-for outlet for the dominion's surplus products without hurt to its pride or embarrassing concessions to its own products. "Canada stands to gain by Democratic success," exclaims the Halifax Herald, and will not need to "sacrifice present advantages."

Of course not! The sacrificing is all to be done by the United States, and the first to be sacrificed by the Wilson and Marshall program as outlined by Bryan, who is dangerous in his theoretical beliefs—according to Governor Wilson in 1908—will be American labor.

It is not to be doubted, moreover, that European manufacturers in general engaged in producing competitive commodities view Governor Wilson's candidacy with cordial approval. It would be strange if they did not. They can have no finer market than America, and their anxiety to reduce the cost of living for our people, therefore, is keen.

WALLACE

WALLACE, Aug. 13.—T. J. Parrish and sons, Raymer and Des, of Clarksburg, drove here and spent Sunday with S. N. Parrish. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Parrish and daughter, Vera, who visited here for several days.

The Ladies Aid Society will have a supper in the Wallace hall Saturday evening commencing at 6 o'clock. In addition to the supper ice cream and cake will be served. Brie Miller, who lives in the Middle run addition, is wearing that smile that no fool dresser has except when the story comes his way. Mother and baby girl are doing nicely.

Misses Hazel and Helen Fair, of the Parrish addition, spent Sunday with friends at Fonda.

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Robinson and children, of Brown, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Arnett.

Lemuel E. Moore, who recently sold his residence property on Depot street to Roscoe Tinkington, has moved into the David Gould property in the Barnes Run addition.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Bennett spent Saturday and Sunday on Nolan's run guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Harbert.

Mrs. Charles Parrish, who visited her sister, Mrs. Charles Cummins, of Elk, has returned to her home at Parkersburg.

Among those who were at Clarksburg last Saturday were W. E. Hall and son, Golden; A. L. Barnes; C. L. Cavanaugh; W. E. Allen; Festus Robinson; Robert L. Swiger; Mrs. C. D. Muzzy and Miss Vivian Collins.

BUYING FALL STOCK.

Mrs. Clara Baker is on an eastern purchasing trip for the Baker under-selling stores. She will visit the markets in Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York to buy a full and complete line of fall goods for the stores and will then go to Atlantic City to stay several days.

Brownell Didn't Know

R. B. Brownell, of the Brownell Shoe Co., Meadville, Pa., didn't know he could get a complete detailed statement of sales, purchases and expenses by departments, by salesmen and by districts of goods in eight stores all with one bookkeeper—didn't know it until he gave one of our men fifteen minutes one very busy day.

Now he says: "It had cost us thousands of dollars to find it out and to get the means of doing it, we would consider it money well spent."

If it was worth "thousands of dollars" to Brownell, it will be worth a stamp to you to know all about it.
